Albany, April 9, 1861.
Albany, April 9, 1861. The session last evening closed with the most intense excitement. It appears that Neison's friends had gathered in large numbers in the galleries, and had prepered themselves to give three cheers upon the vote acquitting Nelson, little dreaming that the feeting of the House was against him. The vote, however, was a decided one against him; and the roughs, with their glazed caps, immediately prepared for a display of another nature. The Sergeant at Arms, as soon as he was ordered to take him in custody, took him into the cloak room of the Assembly. No sooner had he'reached there than a stream of the Albany boys poured in from the outside, nd in a moment three or four found themselves between the Sergeant at Arms and Nelson. Before the Sergeant at-Arms could turn around at least a dozen had found their way between him and Nelson. A fort of a ring was formed, and Nelson rushed out shead of them-und ran off down the hill, followed by an army of roughs and boys, crying "Here he goes," "ID—— the Legislature," &c. The Sergeant at Arms has been in search of him, but up to ten o'click this morning he can find no trace of

Never could a person more justly say, "Deliver me from my friends," than Nelson under this wonderful movement. Nelson was in a fair way of making considerable capital as a martyr. Had he been committed to prison, forty-eight hours would not have passed before a feeling of sympathy would have been manifested which could not fail to result in a universal feeling in his favor. Many a man has gone out of his way for the sake of being committed by legislative bodies, for the sole purpose of making political capital. Nelson, however, has run away from one of the best chances that he has ever had, and instead of having any sympathy, if the vote should be taken over again this morning, there would not be found a dozen that would sustain him; whoever advised Mr. Nelson to escape is in reality his

It is said that the District Attorney took down the names of those voting to imprison Nelson, and parties who travel with him were heard to say that it would not be safe for any of them to travel through the streets at night, as a threat has gone forth that they are all to the District Attorney and some citizens of Albany hung around the Delavan House for some time last night, watching for an opportunity to get hold of Mr. Provost, and boldly threatened to massacre him before he got out of boildy threatened to massacre him before he got out of to wa, for bringing in his minority report, and taking so string ground against Nelson on the floor of the House. This exhibits albuny morals in a mest glorious light, members of the Legislature threatened to be massacred for voting as he conscientiously thought was right, and upneld in it by the prosecuting officer of the county. Was there ever anything worse than that in San Francis-co. in the worst days of crime and varaband. Was there ever anything werse than that in San Francis-co, in the worst days of crime and vagaband-ism of that city, which brought out the Vigilance Committee. The action of these patriots are placing the city of Albany in a beautiful light. If they carry out their threats we may have a few starting demonstrations before the Legislature adjourns, and a stain left upon the ancient Knickerbocker city that years will not remove.

demonstrations before the Legislature adjourns, and a stain left upon the ancient Knickerbożer city that years will not remove.

The heavy vote against Nelson last evening arose from the fact that the evidence clearly shows that he talked with Gibbons, and for three or four days in succession held out to him that he should have pay for his vote. It matters not whether Nelson made the offer of Gibbons seked for the money, the evidence shews that Nelson negotiated with him from Wednesday until Saturday, whist it was the duty of a prosecuting officer, stop the matter at once, even if Gibbons did ask for the money, but the fact that he held the matter open and negotiated with him for three or four days before he made the complaint, faces the fact that he is guitty of negotiating with Gibbons, and that was the point that secured so large a vote in the House last evening, which was certainly a just one, notwithstanding the swaring of the District Attorney and the roughs, who threaten members for casting their votes against Nelson. The success of the bill to take from the Common Council the confirmation of contracts has brought a deputation from the City Hall here, who are on active duty in the lobby, under the lead of Aldermen Cornell and Smith, the President of the Board of Council, and several other officials, whose stock in trade is reduced by this bill. They are loudly book in trade is reduced by this bill.

A long and spirty door to took place men the bill. Mesers. Watson. Littlejohn and Pierro favored the bill at much length, arguing that it was necessary for the State to reap the full benefit of the enlargement of the cana". The land development of the west made it leave "any that every facility that could be made should be do not transport the produce of the West to the seabor" at. Mr. Littlejohn also argued that it was more Epps" tant, under the difficulty existing be twen the two sections of the country, with the probability that the Southern States would held and embarraes the having tion of the dissission, with the full completion of these locks, so that larger boats and those capacke of carrying greater burthers could go the whole length of the canal. It would in his opinion enable them to draw off the traffic as low down as demphis and bring it to the commercial metropolis of our own State. The present locks he held was incapable of looking through the noats fast enough to meet the business of the canals. Mesers Finch and Robinson opposed the bill at mach length, characterizing it as h monatrosity, and objected to it on the ground that it formed a partnership of the State with the individuals mentioned in the bill and their, assignees. Mr. Robinson stated that the same appeals had been made for this as were made for the enlargement of the canals twenty years'ngo, and he imagined that it would lead to similar results. Considerable shirpshooting passed between the semanors, and charges that Mr. Robinson was repeating the words of Nathan Randall, the representative of the house, followed by criminations and oright into these modern times, radical republicans, or my definiti Raircad, and, like that measure, be exhumed at the opening of the next Legislature.

The only thing done in the Senate of any particular importance to the public at large was the insertion in the supply bill of city thousand dollars for Dr. Simms' Woman's Hospital in Madison square, New York. Upon the motion to insert that amount Senator, P. P. Murphy made an elequent appeal in behalf of that institution, which he called the noblest, the best and most worthy of their benefaction of any in the State. His speech was an excellent one, and his appeal in behalf of the mothers and daughters of the State of New York, and, in fact, the nation, was beyond resisting. He also read from the remarks of Dr Valentine Mott where that prominent physician eulogized that institution, and then proceeded to show that females were cured of those diseases which that hospital was devoted to for which they could find no relief elsewhere. He spoke, he said, as a physician, as a member of that profession, in which he had served from his youth up, and he would say that no man in the world had made so important discoveries for woman as had the person now at the head of the bospital. He spoke for about three quarters of an hour. I doubt if the Senator was ever so eloquent before; and the result of his speech is shown by the fact that the sum of $50,000 was inserted by the unanimous vote of the Senate—sne of the most righteous votes that has been given in the Senate chamber during this session; and if the House have a true appreciation of the importance of this hospital to the women of the State, they, in the same unanimous votec, will concur in that amendment to the bill, and will receive the thanks of suffering women, not only of this but coming generations, as well as receive the credit by the processional men of Europe for having a just appreciation of a man who stands at the head of that department of medical science in the wide world.

The appropriation inserted for the Catholic Orphan Asylum, is five, instead of fitythousand dollars.

The Harlem Bridge bill, after a lengthy debate, was to-night ordered to a third reading. Mr Varian was the principal opponent to the bill, but his motions to amend and strike out the several sections were all lost. The bill for rerunding money paid to the State Treasury on emigrants, known as the head money, was Mr. Jones, of New York, who is at home sick, telegraphed Mr. Webster to move for him, under the Robinson resolution, the bill to limit the term of military officers. The bill was moved, and under the rule would have been referred to a select committee ; but Mr. Pierce moved that it be referred to the Committee of the Whole. There was quite a little controversy over it, and the motion was finally adopted by two majority. This makes it a little doubtful about its passage; but if it is reached at all it will be to merrow night.

A motion was made to reconsider the rate on the Long Island bill, which caused a lengthy debate. The Harbor Master Investigating Committee made The Harbor Master Investigating Committee made their report this afternoon, recommending to the Governor the removal of Anable from office. The Committee are clearly of the opinion that they have only reached the top of the places of corruption, and that if they only had time they would be able to report some ast unding developements in this line, which would not only convict other officials, but show that the shipping merchants are somewhat in the fault by standing as tempters. The committee to investigate the charges against Judge Gould, for packing the jury and stuffing the boxes, are expected to report to the Assembly to morrow. It is ru mored that there will be evidence found to make a black record for him. Where will corruption break out next? Comptroller Haws will recummend to the Common Council to purchase the West Washington market property at the price fixed by the Commissioners of the Lond Office. In that is also included two piers, which the city now holds a doubtfut title for
